

Motivation for John 3: 14-21

This Sunday is a spark of joy for us during this second Lent spent in lockdown. It's Laetare Sunday.

It's easy at the moment to feel beaten down and over-burdened with life's stresses and woes but this week's readings give us a reason to shout from the rooftops.

We are so loved. By a God who makes the stars shine in the sky. By an eternal God, Light of the World. And each one of us, small and insignificant as we may feel, is so loved by God that he gave us his Son so that we might share in his eternal life.

He rains Grace upon us, asking only that we come into the light and believe. How are you answering His call?
