

Motivation for Mt 11: 25-30

On this coming Sunday in the readings we are invited to come back to the joy of the Paschal Mystery. We will be presented with the humble King who offers us the knowledge of life, the knowledge of him and the Father, who offers us the experience of his permanent presence within us. Because to know him in biblical sense is to have an intimate experience with him who is known.

I invite you to surrender, to let go, don't worry about your lowliness, inexperience and weakness. In fact this is precisely what you need to be aware of, to simply acknowledge and accept that you need the Lord, that in him is your refuge, in him there is fullness.

Come! Says Isaiah, 'Come and eat... listen and you will live' Pay close attention to these sweet words from the Son to the Father and some others to you. Like a little child humbly listen to your Father who will speak.
